CRS empowers internally displaced persons with business skills

MORE THAN 450 PARTICIPANTS HAVE ACQUIRED SKILLS TO START SMALL BUSINESSES

Since September 2024, with funding from USAID/BHA, the fifth phase of the Anglophone Crisis Emergency Response (ACER) project has been organizing trainings on business skills to empower participants with skills and resources needed to create small businesses, and generate a steady income.

The fourth phase of the Anglophone Crisis Emergency Response (ACER) project supported 110 families with trainings in poultry-raising and chicks to improve their ability to earn income and meet their basic needs sustainably.

In the fifth phase, the project is expanding the livelihood component to empower women and young people with the skills and resources needed to enable them to restart and manage diversified small businesses and generate steady income. The project team is training 558 participants on CRS' business skills for emergency and recovery contexts. At the end of the trainings the participants will develop business plans and receive initial funds to launch their businesses.

Improved access to potable water for families in Mokolo

Since 2019, CRS has supported 10 communities where lives have been threatened by food insecurity, conflict, displacement, and climate change in the Far North of Cameroon. Funded by the German Federal Ministry for Economic Cooperation and Development (BMZ) via KfW (German Development Bank), the Stabilization and Reconciliation in the Lake Chad Region project (STaR) has greatly improved access to potable water in five of the target communities.

The project constructed five human-powered boreholes in Mazi/oulad, Mozogo, Mavoumaï, Gorai and Magoumaz and a mini-water supply system at an Integrated Health Centre in Kossehonne which are all operational.

To ensure sustainability of the water facilities, CRS created management committees. These committees have been trained in self-management, safety, hygiene and sanitation.

"We have plenty of water on site. All the departments have water at all times, even at the night: the maternity ward, the treatment room, the laboratory and even our modern internal latrines."

The population in the five communities no longer need to trek for long distances to fetch water from unreliable sources.

Fostering social cohesion within communities

"When our SILC group started in 2022 our savings totaled 28.000FCFA but after these two years we have saved a little over 800.000FCFA. We live as a family in the group. We help to advice each other and we resolve our disputes amicably."

Ines Doukoya, President of the N'heschedva SILC group which means We are striving

"The peace facilitators have contributed greatly to foster social cohesion in the village of Sirak, but as the population is growing and refugees keep coming, the peace facilitators become indispensable for the community. It will be good for CRS to expand the zone covered by the peace facilitators."

Creating job opportunities for young people

The Stabilization and Reconciliation in the Lake Chad region project (STaR) has continued improving the economic situation of families living in vulnerable conditions in the Mayo-Tsanaga division. The project offered vocational training opportunities and start-up kits to 250 young people who learnt tailoring, carpentry, masonry, electricity, welding etc. Vocational training instructors accompanied the 250 trainees in the 10 project villages where many have been able to set up small businesses and are generating income.

Martin Yokoma learnt masonry for six months after which the STaR project provided essential tools. Martin now produces and sells cement bricks in his village Makandai. He also constructs houses to earn a living. © CRS

Mariyam Djougoudoum is one of the 250 project participants who learnt tailoring. At the end of her training, she received a sewing machine which she has been using to generate income for herself and her family in Mozogo village in the Far North of Cameroon.

Mariyam sews between three to five outfits every week and with the money she makes, she's able to support her husband to provide for their basic needs. Mariyam is now able to pay for her daughter's school fees. She saves 2000 FCFA every week after taking care of the needs of her family.

"I want to be a trainer in the future. My dream is to have a big tailoring workshop and to train other young women in my village Magoumaz."

CRS supports the Cameroon Episcopal conference to improve its functionality

Since May 2022, CRS has been supporting the National Episcopal Conference of Cameroon (NECC) to improve its organizational systems, increase resource mobilization and develop strong MEAL systems. This initiative was under the umbrella of the ALLRight project (Advancing Local Leadership in the Right Way) which ended in September 2024.

“The Projects Unit has worked on the internal working and functionality of the conference and on the relationship between the conference and its partners.”

A final evaluation workshop was organized in Yaoundé from September 10 to 12, 2024 to evaluate the progress made by the project and devise strategies for sustainability. The three-day workshop was attended by the Secretary General of NECC Monsignor Paul Nyaga, the Country Representative, Christophe Droeven, personnel of CRS, NECC, the Projects unit, Heads of Service and the Chief of Party for the ALLRight Fund, Sarah Cashore. The workshop was facilitated by CARO RTA for Partnership and Capacity Strengthening and Local Leadership, Cyrille Seke.

Participants revisited the lifeline of the project and reviewed its key achievements portrayed through 13 most significant change stories. Through multiple group discussions and plenary sessions, the ALLRight team evaluated the efficiency, efficacy, pertinence, and impact of the various activities carried out by the project over its two-year implementation. Participants proposed strategies to help NECC sustain the project changes and achievements. Both NECC and CRS staff shared key evidence-based recommendations to improve the project's implementation in other countries' programs.

As the ALLRight project concludes, it leaves a lasting impact on NECC, fostering innovation and revamping systems.

“With the support of CRS, we have developed the feedback, complaints and response mechanism for the conference which had never existed before. The conference now has an approved safeguarding policy.”
