Lives & Livelihoods: How Savings Groups Transform Lives

Why Savings and Internal Lending Communities (SILC)?

Most formal financial institutions are unable to reach the world's poorest people, who greatly need access to financial services. To address this need, we help community members to form groups, pool their savings and make loans to each other. This approach has created economic opportunities for nearly 1.8 million people who live in the world's most impoverished areas.

CRS provides training and capacity strengthening to new savings groups, using a highly sustainable market-based approach. Learn more about CRS' Savings and Internal Lending Communities (SILC).

RCIA Session: Living Like Jesus

Catholic Charities USA and Catholic Relief Services have teamed up to offer RCIA Session: Living Like Jesus, a lectionary-based catechetical session for the period of the Catechumenate and Mystagogia. The Rite of Christian Initiation for Adults prepares people for full initiation into the Catholic Church through a process of catechetical formation, Christian living in the midst of the community, integration into a life of prayer and worship and living the apostolic life. This session will help initiation leaders form candidates, catechumens and sponsors to understand how living the apostolic life includes reaching out to people on the peripheries of society, as Christ did.

DIOCESE OF FORT WAYNE-SOUTH BEND

Congratulations and Farewell to Melissa Wheeler, CRS Diocesan Director for the Diocese of Fort Wayne-South Bend

Melissa Wheeler recently received The Humanitas Award from the Alumnae Association of Saint Mary's College of Notre Dame, IN. This award recognizes an alumna of the Catholic liberal arts women's college who is outstanding in her personal and volunteer accomplishments and is recognized for her concern for the interests and welfare of her fellow human beings. Her actions exemplify the qualities of personal dedication, compassion, selflessness, and sacrifice through social action, education, and reform within the community, the Church, and the world.

Melissa was recognized for her service in Catholic education and with Catholic Relief Services (CRS). Melissa has been teaching Theology at Bishop Dwenger High School since 2001, serving as the school's Social Justice Coordinator since 2005, and was named the Diocesan Director for Catholic Relief Services for the Diocese of Fort Wayne-South Bend in 2012.

Under Melissa's leadership, the diocese has seen increased participation in CRS Rice Bowl and each of the 4 diocesan high schools participate in the CRS Global High School program. She recently established a new diocesan global solidarity team, laying the groundwork for the CRS Parish Ambassador Corp initiative. Melissa also travelled to Ghana in 2014 with the CRS Global High School delegation.

Effective June 1, Melissa has taken on a significant new project at Bishop Dwenger High School, developing a 4-year theology curriculum for students with special needs. Thus, Melissa has decided to step-away from her role as CRS Diocesan Director. We send her off with our prayers and gratitude for all that she has done to strengthen the work of global solidarity in the Diocese of Fort Wayne-South Bend.

Marquette University CRS Ambassadors Work to Humanize the Refugee Experience

by Sherri Walker, Marquette University Center for Peacemaking

In response to the executive order enacted at the end of 2016, students from Marquette's community came together to voice their concern. Students felt more should be done for refugees around the world. In the spirit of collective advocacy, Marquette's CRS Student Ambassadors, along with other student organizations, distributed information and scripts to encourage students to phone legislators and engage in public advocacy.

The effort was successful; students filled the voicemail boxes of their legislators and made their voices heard. By talking to fellow students during this activity, Marquette CRS Student Ambassadors found that Marquette students wanted to meet refugees and learn more about their experiences. #### Marquette University CRS Ambassadors Work to Humanize the Refugee Experience (continued from pg. 2)

by Sherri Walker, Marquette University Center for Peacemaking

The ambassadors brainstormed two ways to humanize refugees and decided to host a panel discussion and simulation to help students become more aware of the refugee situation both locally and worldwide. On a college campus in Wisconsin, migrants can seem so far away and are often seen as a statistic, rather than a mother, father, or child.

The ambassadors invited three refugees from different cultural backgrounds to share their story with 120 Marquette students. Because of this experience, students expanded their knowledge and understanding of the difficult journey of refugees. A refugee from Iraq shared his experience of leaving behind his homeland because of continued war and violence. Students were able to act on this increased understanding by sending advocacy cards to their representatives to call for legislative change in response to the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops (USCCB) statement, which pleads for support for refugees.

The ambassadors then held a refugee and migration simulation where students gained a better understanding of the stresses of leaving one's home and going through the immigration process. While there is no way to adequately emulate these horrific experiences, each station in the simulation attempted to demonstrate a different part of a migrant and refugee journey. Activities were designed to simulate border crossing, detention and deportation, asylum processing, and reflection with a previous refugee and current refugee case manager. In the deportation simulation, students participated in an ICE raid in which the entire family was questioned and the parents forcibly detained.

The activities informed students about the migrant experience in the midst of the Syrian Refugee crisis and the recent government actions regarding refugees and migrants. However, this is an ongoing issue. Marquette CRS Student Ambassadors hope that you will join in advocating for the rights and needs of refugees and migrants worldwide.

CRS Northeast/Mid-Atlantic Region News

Summer Happenings in the CRS Northeast/Mid-Atlantic Region

- The Northeast/Mid-Atlantic Regional Office, along with The Partnership and Capacity Strengthening Unit hosted a welcome reception on July 12th at Villanova University. The reception offered the chance for attendees to meet with 35 members of our CRS staff from 24 countries around the globe.
- On August 21st, the Northeast/Mid-Atlantic Regional Office is hosting a gathering of Global High School participants in the region. The gathering will be held in Pennsylvania at St. Thomas of Villanova. The region will be providing the opportunity for school leaders to learn more about the resources available for the Global High School program, while connecting both new and seasoned schools with other teachers and administrators to learn how they have answered the call of global solidarity through CRS.
- The Northeast/Mid-Atlantic Region is offering a day of fellowship and conversation for our key partners from several dioceses in and around upstate New York. The hope for the day is to bring neighbors together to share ideas, and to find new ways to live as missionary disciples in our local and global Church. This will be held on September 11th at the Belhurst Castle, Geneva, New York.
- Three members of the Archdiocese of Philadelphia will travel with a group of five other participants and two CRS representatives to Burkina Faso. The purpose of this trip will be for the group to visit community partners in Burkina Faso that receive food packed during our Helping Hands programs, as well as to be immersed in the culture. The travelers from Philadelphia will be commissioned in the NE/MA regional office Thursday, July 13th, before they leave for their journey. Please pray for them as they make their final preparations for this hands-on experience of global solidarity!

New Migration Book and Academic/Educational Faculty Learning Commons Modules

At latest count, 244 million people—the highest number in history—reside in a nation in which they were not born. But migration is not a new phenomenon.

Check out the new migration book Global Migration: What's Happening, Why, and a Just Response! It unpacks the complex issues surrounding modern migration, including the reasons people might need or choose to leave their country of origin, and the laws, treaties, and resources that dictate the opportunities of migrants, refugees, asylum seekers, and internally displaced people upon resettling. Focused on the humanitarian work of Catholic Relief Services throughout the world, Global Migration inspires reflection, provokes discussion, and empowers students to respond to today's greatest humanitarian crisis.

The academic and educational modules via the CRS Faculty Learning Commons are accessible for use inside the classroom, for personal learning and beyond. These modules supplement the Global Migration book with additional resources and discussion questions.

Please contact the CRS University team, if you have questions.
