I. Background

Catholic Relief Services is the official international humanitarian agency of the Catholic community in the United States. CRS works to save, protect, and transform lives in need in more than 100 countries, without regard to race, religion or nationality. CRS' relief and development work is accomplished through programs of emergency response, HIV, health, agriculture, education, microfinance and peacebuilding.

The Humanitarian Response Department leads CRS' comprehensive approach to emergency programming, supporting country programs and partners with a wide array of support tailored to the local context and needs. We support the full spectrum of needs in an emergency context: disaster preparedness and risk reduction; strengthened local response capacity; provision of urgent lifesaving assistance; and building upon existing local systems that ensure families and communities have the support they need to manage their own recovery. In every situation, we respond in close collaboration with our partners and the affected communities, in appreciation for the local context, prioritizing protection and needs among the most vulnerable, and promoting meaningful, community-led engagement throughout their relief and recovery.

There is already widespread deployment of biometrics in the global development and humanitarian sector. Partly as a result of the growing preference for cash assistance, CRS is seeing increased pressure by international donors and rising desire among implementing agencies to integrate biometrics into aid delivery. This is usually based on the (currently unsubstantiated) belief that biometric recognition will address issues of fraud and duplicative access to services more effectively than alternative anti-fraud and deduplication methods.

To date, biometrics have been used in some CRS programming, such as to reduce impersonation when attending trainings or deduplicate recipients of food aid. Collection, processing, and storage of biometric data is however strongly discouraged by the agency, given the challenges of doing so in alignment with the agency's Responsible Data Values and Principles, as well as the agency's overriding obligation to protect people, especially the poor and vulnerable. At the same time, the agency is experiencing donor demands for use of biometrics and there is an ongoing need for the agency to deploy robust anti-fraud and deduplication methods in its programming, to ensure aid reaches the intended recipients.

Further, as a member of the Collaborative Cash Delivery (CCD) Network, CRS is actively involved discussions on interoperability and data governance aims to simplify the process for individuals impacted by humanitarian crises to manage their own data and take charge of its management.

II. Purpose

Difficulties associated with the enrollment, identification, and verification of programme participants can lead to a variety of inefficiencies in the delivery of humanitarian services and distribution of resources. Digital technologies may offer a means of addressing these challenges, while also enabling the collection of high quality data for decision making, and fulfilling donors' growing expectations around transparency and accountability.

Increasingly common is the use of biometrics for establishing a unique identity, preventing duplication upon enrollment, and enabling reliable authentication. The use of biometrics, particularly among vulnerable groups, is however fraught with issues around data protection, privacy, security, surveillance, and human dignity. Questions have also been raised regarding the effectiveness of biometrics use for those purposes.

Further, there is a strong push to make interoperable systems for collecting, storing, managing, and sharing data for the purposes of enabling its sharing and reuse and for preventing duplication across actors. As with the use of biometrics, there are several concerns associated with the privacy and security of interoperable systems as well as with the sheer workload and cost involved in collecting, governing, and protecting ever-growing volumes of sensitive data.

The overarching goal of this consultancy is to assist CRS in identifying and exploring a breadth of pragmatic and responsible approaches to enable deduplication of program participants in the context of humanitarian programming both during registration and across systems and actors. Special attention will be afforded to existing and emerging approaches that address the pitfalls of traditional biometrics. This guidance will take the form of a report including an overview of pertinent issues, a review and assessment of current and emerging approaches, case studies of promising approaches, a summary of outstanding questions, and decision making guidance. The final report will be presented in a recorded presentation.

Specific questions include:

Current state:

- I. What is the current state of the dialogue around the use of biometrics in humanitarian settings, specifically for deduplication and fraud reduction?
- II. What are CRS' peers and the CCD doing on deduplication and fraud reduction (including non-biometric means) and what are key donor positions on the topic?
- III. How is CRS currently addressing deduplication and fraud reduction in our programming? What are the strengths and weaknesses of the approaches used?
- IV. What emerging issues or concerns has CRS not addressed in its existing position statement on biometrics, and/or what concerns may have been subsequently mitigated or resolved?

Alternative approaches:

- I. What alternative (non-biometric) approaches might CRS explore for enabling efficient deduplication? These might include wholly non-biometric approaches (incl. data portability), so-called "soft biometrics", behaviometrics, cancelable biometrics, or related novel approaches.
- II. What are the strengths and weaknesses of these alternative approaches in comparison to biometrics?
- III. What is the operational feasibility of these approaches? What proofs of concept or pilots exist, and what does the evidence suggest? We are particularly interested in the interoperability of these approaches with other relevant systems as well as scalability.

Future state:

- I. What questions or considerations should guide CRS' decision making when considering biometrics and alternative approaches?

- II. What governance, systems, and processes would need to be put in place for CRS to conduct deduplication in line with the agency's Responsible Data Values and Principles and upcoming Responsible Data Policy when using a) biometrics (e.g. in the context of programming with WFP and UNHCR) and b) some of the more promising alternative means identified in the research?

Consultant hereby accepts the engagement as a consultant to CRS and agrees to provide the consulting services set forth in the Scope of Work on the terms and conditions described in this Agreement.
2. Independent Contractor. Consultant shall provide services under this Agreement as an independent contractor, and not as an employee or agent of CRS or any subsidiary or affiliate of CRS (collectively, a "CRS Entity"). Nothing in this Agreement shall at any time be construed so as to create the relationship of employer and employee, partnership, principal and agent, or joint venture between Consultant and any CRS Entity.
3. Term of the Agreement. The term of this Agreement (the "Consulting Period") shall be determined by the Start and End dates indicated in the Project Information section of the Consultant Information Sheet, which is attached hereto and incorporated to this Agreement by reference. The Agreement may be terminated before the end of the Consulting Period only in the circumstances described in Article IV. In the event that CRS and the Consultant wish to extend this agreement beyond the expiration date, the parties will mutually agree in writing to the extension prior to the End date. Absent such written agreement, the Agreement will automatically expire on the End date.
4. Time and Attention. Consultant shall devote such time and attention to Consultant's duties under this Agreement as may be necessary to discharge the duties properly, and Consultant shall exert Consultant's best efforts in the performance of the duties. Consultant shall have no responsibility for the day-to-day management of any CRS Entity, nor shall Consultant supervise, or be supervised by, personnel of any CRS Entity. Consultant shall have no authority to execute any document or enter into any contract on behalf of a CRS Entity, or to bind a CRS Entity in any relationship with a third party.

6. Non-exclusive Agreement. CRS acknowledges and agrees that during the Consulting Period, Consultant is free to engage in other business activities or to provide consulting services to other parties without the approval or consent of any CRS Entity.

7. Reports and Data. All reports and data prepared by Consultant in connection with the services performed under this Agreement shall be the property of CRS and shall not be used by Consultant in connection with any other activity.

Article II COMPENSATION AND EXPENSES

1. Compensation. As compensation for Consultant's services under this agreement, CRS shall pay Consultant in the amount, by the method, and in accordance with the payment period/frequency schedule stipulated on the Consultant Information Sheet, which is attached hereto and incorporated in this Agreement by reference. Consultant shall receive no other compensation for providing services under this Agreement. On an agreed upon basis, the Consultant shall submit to the CRS Contact Person an itemized invoice, preferably by email, for the Services, and/or any additional Services, based on the payment terms as set forth in the Consultant Information Sheet and any authorized expenses incurred. 2. Equipment and Work Space. Consultant shall provide basic office equipment (including computer, fax machine, and/or copier) and work space at Consultant's expense as necessary to provide services under this Agreement. If it is necessary for Consultant to perform consulting services under this Agreement at CRS's place of business or using CRS's specialized equipment, CRS may provide temporary work space or may make available specialized equipment to Consultant to the extent CRS deems necessary.

3. Business Expense. Consultant may hire at Consultant's own expense, without prior approval of any CRS Entity, any assistants or other personnel necessary to enable Consultant to provide services under this Agreement. Consultant shall be responsible for any such business expense incurred by Consultant in connection with the performance of services under this Agreement. CRS shall not reimburse Consultant for any such business expense.

4. Other Expenses. CRS shall reimburse Consultant for reasonable expenses incurred in connection with the performance of the Services solely to the extent identified on the Consultant Information Sheet. Invoices for such reimbursable expenses shall be submitted to the CRS Contact Person identified on the Consultant Information Sheet for approval, together with all supporting documentation reasonably required by CRS, and CRS shall pay such invoices within thirty (30) days following such approval. Consultant shall maintain books and records supporting all reimbursable expenses incurred in connection with performance of the Services for the duration of this Agreement, and for a period of four (4) years thereafter. CRS shall have access during Consultant's regular business hours to such books and records of Consultant as required to verify any and all reimbursable costs.

5. Travel Arrangements and Expenses. In order to contain costs and to benefit from economies available to humanitarian organizations, CRS will arrange for and provide to the Consultant the travel reasonably required to perform the Services under this Agreement. Upon CRS' prior written approval, the Consultant may arrange for actual, reasonable, out-of-pocket expenses for such travel reasonably required to perform the Services under this Agreement and submit such expenses to CRS for reimbursement in accordance with the payment structure described above in Article II (4). Consultant shall be bound by CRS requirements and policies, provided, in writing, by the CRS Contact Person to the Consultant.

6. Severance and Benefits. During the Consulting Period, Consultant shall not be eligible to participate in, or to earn any benefit under, any employee benefit plan, fringe benefit program, bonus or incentive program, or other compensation arrangement of a CRS Entity (including, but not limited to, any comprehensive medical insurance, workers' compensation, disability insurance, accidental death or dismemberment insurance, life insurance, or any defined benefit plan or defined contribution plan sponsored by any CRS Entity). The preceding sentence shall apply throughout the Consulting Period even if Consultant is later reclassified as a common law employee for part or all of the Consulting Period. Consultant shall have no right to, and agrees not to, make any claim against CRS under any workers' compensation or unemployment compensation statute. Nothing in this Agreement, nor any payments made to Consultant under this Agreement, shall be construed to reduce any severance payment or other benefit to which Consultant is or may become entitled as a result of Consultant's employment by a CRS Entity before or after the Consulting Period. To the extent that Consultant is entitled to receive benefits under any compensation arrangement of a CRS Entity upon Consultant's termination of service, Consultant acknowledges that the terms of the compensation arrangement and applicable law will determine whether the distribution of the benefit will be postponed while the Consultant provides services under this Agreement. For the avoidance of doubt, CRS will not pay for nor reimburse Consultant for medical insurance or medical evacuation insurance.

Article III COVENANTS

1. Personal Contract. Subject to Article II, Section 3, Consultant acknowledges that CRS has contracted for Consultant's services in recognition of Consultant's knowledge and prior experience.
