CATHOLIC RELIEF SERVICES’ ENGAGEMENT WITH U.S. SEMINARIES, HOUSES OF FORMATION, AND SCHOOLS OF THEOLOGY

Background

Catholic Relief Services (CRS) is the official overseas relief and development agency of the USCCB. For more than seventy years, CRS has represented, globally, the Catholic Church of the United States. In some of the most difficult situations imaginable, CRS has witnessed Christ’s love for those who are suffering. The Board of Directors of Catholic Relief Services, which represents the bishops of the United States in governing the agency, directed CRS to expand its capacity so as to work with the Catholic community in the United States. CRS was asked to help educate the faithful in the U.S. about the central Gospel call to care for the ‘least among us’ and to help engage Catholics in acting on this shared mission through CRS programs and resources.

A growing focal point of CRS’ efforts to animate and support the engagement of U.S. Catholics in its global mission has been our outreach to both diocesan and religious clergy. Our goal is to be a resource for clergy as they help their people deepen their faith and animate it in their lives. CRS is committed to providing a continuum of resources that diocesan and religious seminarians, as well as priests who are in active ministry or in limited service, can employ “to undertake a profound interior renewal so that being vividly conscious of their responsibility for the spread of the gospel they might play their part in missionary work…” (see Ad Gentes, no. 35). Briefly stated, our overarching goal is to be a resource for clergy in their work to help God’s people to deepen their faith and to actively translate it into concrete actions in favor of those most in need.
Benefits

This document has been developed in collaboration with key faculty and staff from various U.S. seminaries, houses of formation, schools of theology, and the NCEA’s former seminary department. The resources developed by this CRS/seminary partnership will benefit seminaries, houses of religious formation, and schools of theology by:

- Integrating Catholic social teaching (CST) comprehensively and effectively in the formation program and curriculum; and
- Providing evidence to support seminaries, with the task of accreditation, in demonstrating that the four dimensions of the PPF-v are being effectively achieved.

Rationale

The Post-Synodal Apostolic Exhortation, Pastores dabo vobis, number 18, states: “As the Council points out, ‘the spiritual gift which priests have received in ordination does not prepare them merely for a limited and circumscribed mission, but for the fullest, in fact the universal, mission of salvation to the ends of the earth. The reason is that every priestly ministry shares in the fullness of the mission entrusted by Christ to the apostles (Presbyterorum Ordinis, no. 10).” Consequently—the exhortation continues—“By the very nature of their ministry they should therefore be penetrated and animated by a profound missionary spirit and ‘with that truly Catholic spirit which habitually looks beyond the boundaries of diocese, country or rite to meet the needs of the whole Church, being prepared in spirit to preach the Gospel everywhere’ (Optatam Totius, no.20—emphasis added).” It seems clear then that, if priests are to be ordained in the service of the universal Church and ought to possess a ‘missionary’ character, they ought to receive a type of formation that will make them knowledgeable of, generous toward, and committed to our sisters and brothers throughout the world, especially those in greater need. It is precisely in this regard that CRS aims to be a helpful resource for U.S. seminaries, houses of formation, and schools of theology in their efforts to fulfill the clear mandate to prepare future priests for active engagement in the global mission of the Church.

- (#208/PPF-v): The social teaching of the Church must be presented in its entirety with appropriate principles of reflection, criteria for judgment, and norms for action. The systemic study of the social encyclicals of the popes is especially recommended.
- (#229/PPF-v): Throughout the curriculum, the biblical, theological, ethical, and historical foundations of the Church’s teaching on social justice should be highlighted.
- (#356/PPF-v): In order to inculcate in seminarians sensitivity for issues of social justice, the seminary faculty first must possess an awareness of the significance of questions of peace, justice, and respect for life.
Strategy

CRS looks to strengthen the capacity of the seminaries, houses of religious formation, and schools of theology to equip future priests with the requisite skills to proclaim, animate, and activate Catholic social teaching (CST) in their places of formation, in their future parishes, and within a vast array of ecclesial settings. CRS proposes the following strategies to achieve the desired outcome, based on existing actual structures and processes and in accord with the four dimensions of priestly formation developed in Pastores dabo vobis and contained in the Program of Priestly Formation, fifth edition (PPF-v).
“Sharing in the Fullness of the Mission of Christ”

CRS’ PROGRAM OF PRIESTLY FORMATION

HUMAN FORMATION

A (future) priest must be a bridge and not an obstacle for others in their meeting with Jesus Christ. Places of formation should cultivate a spirit of generosity in future priests, encouraging them to become ‘men for others,’ to curb expectations of entitlement, and to exchange materialism and consumerism for a proper simplicity of life. Further, a (future) priest is asked to deepen a sense of compassion and generosity by being a person of communion who relates well with others, particularly those of diverse backgrounds. Those in charge of formation should keep in mind that the process by which a future priest becomes a ‘solid bridge’ is one of self-knowledge, self-acceptance, and self-gift.

The PPF-v reminds those in charge of formation and faculty members that the best guidance they can give to those in formation is the “wholesome witness of their own lives’ (n.104). Hence, the PPF-v challenges both the individual candidate for priesthood and the whole seminary community to value and foster a ‘simplicity of life’. CST principles that further complement and/or deepen this area of growth are ‘option for the poor’, ‘solidarity’, and ‘stewardship’.

The PPF-v places the primary responsibility to “delineate attitudinal and behavioral expectations regarding all aspects of human formation, especially those which are appropriate to a... life of simplicity...” in the person of the rector of the seminary (n.103). Thus, the rector or the person in charge of the house of religious formation is the primary resource in fulfilling this call.
QUESTIONS

1. How can our seminary, house of religious formation, and/or school of theology keep developing an environment in which we all learn what it means to be “men for others”?

2. How can our seminary, house of religious formation, and/or school of theology keep witnessing “simplicity of life” and showing good stewardship of the goods entrusted to us?

3. How can our seminary, house of religious formation, and/or school of theology keep visibly witnessing our solidarity towards and our option for the poor?

4. How can our seminary, house of religious formation, and/or school of theology keep creating opportunities for seminarians to become ‘solid bridges’ who form networks of solidarity and communion?
RESOURCES

Becoming “men for others”

Faculty, staff, and diocesan and religious seminarians from different ethnic, cultural, and linguistic backgrounds are the first resource a seminary, house of religious formation, and/or school of theology has to promote communion, particularly with those of diverse backgrounds. Their mere presence is a constant invitation to the whole formation community to become aware of issues happening outside the U.S. Many places of formation require priests to take part in cultural preparation programs that help them acquire cultural sensitivity and language skills.

In this regard, CRS offers a prime opportunity for faculty, staff, and seminarians who are interested in spreading the message of global solidarity to participate in its Global Fellows Program. Training and traveling to CRS programs overseas offers seminarians, deacons, and priests a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to witness what ‘simplicity of life,’ ‘compassion,’ ‘solidarity’ and ‘option for the poor’ looks like in the midst of poverty and global emergencies (http://www.crs.org/clergy).

Becoming men of compassion and solidarity

The word ‘compassion’ means ‘to suffer with’ or ‘to love together with.’ Jesus embodies the very essence of compassion and challenges Christians to act compassionately towards others. Compassion begins with looking at a (suffering) man or woman and recognizing in him/her a human being. Ultimately, compassion helps us by connecting our own lives and struggles with that of others.

In this area, CRS offers an invaluable tool that can help faculty, staff, and seminarians to get information about global issues and to remain connected (http://www.confrontglobalpoverty.org). By signing up to receive CRS’ e-mail alerts the entire formation community can be cognizant about the latest disaster response or the newest development program, as well as pray for those in the field and those affected or benefitted by CRS work while growing in compassion and solidarity.

Other resources

Invite guest speakers – men and women who have a clear and integrated knowledge of CST principles, particularly those who have witnessed the work of CRS overseas. Focus on the issue of world hunger. Employ the CRS resource, FoodFast (http://www.foodfast.crs.org), organizing a seminary-wide event. Create in public places, such as in the dining hall, an ‘environment of compassion’ by looping videos (http://www.youtube.com/catholicrelief) of the work of CRS around the world.
SPIRITUAL FORMATION

Spiritual formation complements human formation and is a (future) priest’s core, “which unifies and gives life to his being a priest and his acting as a priest” (Pastores dabo vobis, n. 45). The spirituality described in the PPF-v calls the individual candidate for priesthood and the seminary community to be disciples of Jesus, to be transformed by the Word and to experience a conversion of heart. Through prayer, spiritual exercises, and the celebration of the sacraments (especially the Eucharist and Reconciliation), all are challenged to ‘acquire listening and learning hearts’.

Among the many practices indicated in the PPF-v, CRS can contribute to further the following three: apostolic dimension, simplicity of life, and solidarity (see n. 110). According to the PPF-v, “Spiritual formation also involves seeking Christ in people. Especially in a seminary context, seminarians are to learn how prayer is to be lived out in service of others, particularly the poor, sick, sinners, unbelievers, and the stranger, but extended to all in the outreach of charity and mercy, and in the quest for justice...

Whatever growth and formation in prayer takes place, it is not simply meant for the personal enhancement of the seminarian but as a gift to be given in the course of his priestly mission and ministry for the benefit of the Church—for he is a servant of this body.”

Regarding simplicity of life, the PPF-v recommends “to live with evangelical simplicity” and “to exercise responsible stewardship over God’s creation by using material goods in a way that is both responsive to the call of the Gospel and ecologically responsible.” Further, the document charges spiritual directors and mentors/advisors to make sure that seminarians take proper care of their own resources, as well as those of the seminary and the Church.

Finally, regarding solidarity the PPF-v states, “seminarians are to have a spiritual formation grounded in Trinitarian communion that leads them to solidarity with others, especially those most in need, a commitment to justice and peace, a reciprocal exchange of spiritual and material gifts, and an authentic missionary spirit expressed in a willingness to serve where needed.”
QUESTIONS

1. How can our seminary, house of religious formation, and/or school of theology help seminarians keep connecting their spiritual life with their service to the poor and needy?

2. How can our seminary, house of religious formation, and/or school of theology keep fostering communion with our global community of sisters and brothers in need?

3. How can our liturgical practices, especially during Advent and Lent, keep highlighting the necessary connection between spirituality, liturgy (sacraments) and solidarity with the poor and needy?

4. How can our preaching (during daily Mass, Sunday Mass, and in special occasions) keep connecting spirituality with apostolic dimension, simplicity of life, and solidarity?
RESOURCES

Distribute a list of the themes of Catholic social teaching (http://www.usccb.org) to all in the seminary community, particularly Spiritual Directors. What spiritual virtues are required for one to live these principles? How might these themes guide spiritual direction/formation within the seminary community?

Use the themes of Catholic social teaching as a thematic guide for days of recollection and retreats.

During Lent, fully implement the CRS Rice Bowl faith formation program. (http://www.crsricebowl.org)

Use CRS’ and USCCB’s Catholic social teaching videos (http://www.crs.org/resource-center/CST-101).

Sign up all seminary personnel and seminarians for the quarterly CRS Clergy Newsletter (http://www.crs.org/clergy) which contains suggestions for prayer and homily hints.

Incorporate intentions on behalf of the global community in the Prayer of the Faithful.

Incorporate various resources on the saints (http://www.crs.org/resource-center).

Be attentive to the environment of the Chapel and the music used in liturgies so as to reflect participation in a universal Church community.
INTELLECTUAL FORMATION

“Intellectual formation...is a fundamental demand of man’s intelligence by which he ‘participates in the light of God’s mind’ and seeks to acquire a wisdom which in turn opens to and is directed towards knowing and adhering to God” (Gaudium et spes, no.15). Intellectual formation, however, “culminates in a deepened understanding of the mysteries of faith that is pastorally oriented toward effective priestly ministry, especially preaching” (PPF-v, n. 138—emphasis added).

According to the PPF-v, n. 154, “The study of philosophy is not just part of intellectual formation, but is also connected to human, spiritual, and pastoral formation. Issues about priestly identity and the apostolic and missionary dimensions of priestly ministry ‘are closely linked to the question about the nature of truth,’” (Pastores dabo vobis, n. 52—emphasis added). Besides, “Due consideration should be given in theological formation to its pastoral aim.

Theological studies should be designed with the pastoral goal in view, recognizing that the pastoral character of priestly formation applies to intellectual formation as well as to the other areas of formation” (PPF-v, n.196 and Pastores dabo vobis, nos.55.57).

The PPF-v charges faculty members in a very special way with presenting CST in its entirety; with appropriate principles of reflection, criteria for judgment, and norms for action; and paying special attention to the social encyclicals of the popes (n.208). Further, throughout their curriculum they need to highlight the biblical, theological, ethical, and historical foundations of the Church’s teaching on social justice (n.229). Furthermore, in order to inculcate in seminarians sensitivity for issues of social justice, they must possess first an awareness of the significance of questions of peace, justice, and respect for life (n. 356).
QUESTIONS

1. How can we, faculty members of this seminary, house of religious formation, and/or school of theology help students get better acquainted with the seven themes of CST?

2. How can we, faculty members of this seminary, house of religious formation, and/or school of theology integrate the CST foundational documents into our teaching/preaching?

3. How can we, faculty members of this seminary, house of religious formation, and/or school of theology help students integrate intellectual knowledge with the capacity to discern the pastoral implications and opportunities for sharing this knowledge?

4. How can the activities/events of our seminary, house of religious formation, and/or school of theology be organized to raise awareness regarding CST and promote involvement in CRS and other Catholic integral human development activities?
RESOURCES

Ensure that the theme of integral human development is a lens which informs homiletics, giving candidates opportunities to develop both content and skills. Employ the homily hints available from both CRS Rice Bowl [http://www.crsricebowl.org] and the CRS Clergy Newsletter [http://www.crs.org/clergy].

See also the USCCB resource, “Preaching the Social Doctrine of the Church in the Mass” [http://www.usccb.org].

Employ in the various theological and philosophical disciplines, the resources regarding global issues found on the CRS University website [http://www.university.crs.org/]. Utilize the CRS Global Solidarity Faculty Network modules in classes [http://www.university.crs.org].

See CRS' and the USCCB’s Catholic social teaching videos and consider doing some small faith sharing on different issues [https://www.crs.org/resource-center/cst-101-video and http://www.crs.org/resource-center/live-mercy-series]

See USCCB resources regarding social justice and Catholic social teaching [http://www.usccb.org].

BOOKS

According to the PPF-v, n. 236, “All four dimensions of formation are interwoven and go forward concurrently. Still, in a certain sense, pastoral formation is the culmination of the entire formation process: ‘The whole formation imparted to candidates for the priesthood aims at preparing them to enter into communion with the charity of Christ the Good Shepherd. Hence, their formation in its different aspects must have a fundamentally pastoral character’ (Pastores dabo vobis, no. 57).”

This dimension challenges the seminary community to be a ‘lab’ where a candidate for priesthood may successfully integrate the three dimensions of human, spiritual, and intellectual formation, developing pastoral skills for effective ministry. How can a candidate for priesthood acquire, develop and test out effective pastoral skills, developing a ‘tool box’ of resources for future use?

Through activities and programs offered within the seminary community, as well as opportunities for field education and pastoral internships, a candidate should be able to demonstrate that he has integrated the themes of Catholic social teaching in his person and pastoral ministry.

Among the many essential elements indicated in the PPF-v, CRS can contribute to further the following five: proclamation of the Word, missionary dimension, cultural sensitivity, religious pluralism, and the poor (seen. 239).
QUESTIONS

1. How can our seminary, house of religious formation, and/or school of theology make sure that our seminarians can successfully integrate the four dimensions of formation in order to become an effective minister?

2. How can our seminary, house of religious formation, and/or school of theology help a seminarian develop a ‘tool box’ of effective pastoral skills and resources for future use?

3. Are the seminary, house of religious formation, and/or school of theology’s activities, programs, field education and pastoral placements apt to help our seminarians translate CST themes into concrete pastoral actions/initiatives?

4. Is our seminary, house of religious formation, and/or school of theology making sure that our seminarians have knowledge of and access to CRS services and resources to enhance their formation and future ministry?
RESOURCES

Become familiar with the agency, Catholic Relief Services—its history and mission. Explore the website: www.crs.org becoming familiar with the programs and resources available for individuals, parishes and dioceses.

Faculty and staff are encouraged to organize and develop a group of faculty/staff and seminarians, charged with the task of informing and animating the seminary community around issues of global solidarity. This activity can help seminarians acquire the requisite communications and organizational skills to create an agenda and to hold effective meetings, which animate the community toward action.

Faculty and staff are encouraged to make contact with and to get to know the CRS Regional Office representatives and the CRS Diocesan Director in their respective dioceses, as well as in the diocese in which the seminary, house of religious formation, and/or school of theology is located. Faculty/staff are encouraged to invite the CRS Relationship Manager responsible for the seminary partnership to visit the seminary community.

Learn more about the issue of economic justice. Become familiar with the CRS Ethical Trade program (http://www.ethicaltrade.crs.org/) developing opportunities for sales within the seminary. Move towards becoming an Ethical Trade campus.

Educate the community on hunger issues using the Food Fast resources (http://www.foodfast.crs.org).

Learn how to host a Helping Hands event (http://helpinghands.crs.org). Get the community involved by packing meals for immediate hunger and relief efforts and help fund income generating projects. This is a great community effort that brings together generations for a common good.
Evaluating Guidelines

The PPF-v proposes evaluating guidelines for each area of formation, to be applied according to the principle of gradualism, at each level of formation. CRS can contribute to this evaluation process in the following areas:

a) Human Formation includes the human qualities of truthfulness, respect for others, justice, humility, integrity, affability, generosity, kindness, courtesy, and prudence.

A seminarian’s involvement with CRS will help him acquire and develop:
- Skills for leadership and collaboration with women and men;
- Simplicity of life and stewardship of resources; and
- Engagement in the community life of the seminary.

b) Spiritual Formation looks at a seminarian’s participation in the spiritual exercises of the seminary and his growth as a man of faith.

A seminarian’s involvement with CRS will help him acquire and develop:
- A commitment to a life of prayer in the service of others;
- A positive embrace of a lifelong commitment to simplicity of life; and
- A spirit of self-giving charity toward others.

c) Intellectual Formation

A seminarian’s involvement with CRS will help him acquire and develop:
- Love for truth as discovered by faith and reason
- Knowledge of CST and adherence to it
- Ability to exercise the ministry of the Word: to proclaim, explain, and defend the faith

d) Pastoral Formation

A seminarian’s involvement with CRS will help him acquire and develop:
- A missionary spirit, zeal for evangelization, and ecumenical commitment;
- A spirit of pastoral charity, a quest for justice, and an openness to serve all people;
- A special love for and commitment to the sick and suffering, the poor and outcasts, prisoners, immigrants, and refugees
- Demonstration of appropriate pastoral skills and competencies for ministry;
- Ability to exercise pastoral leadership;
- The ability to carry out pastoral work collaboratively with others and an appreciation for the different charisms and vocations within the Church

- The ability to work in a multicultural setting with people of different ethnic, racial, and religious backgrounds;
- A commitment to the proclamation, celebration, and service of the Gospel of life; and
- Energy and zeal for pastoral ministry.
Seminary Animators

Seminary animators are asked to ‘animate’ others in their seminary community – faculty, staff and seminarians – in deepening their knowledge of Catholic Social Teaching, moving all toward personal and communal action. As well, seminary animators are asked to grow in familiarity with Catholic Relief Services as an agency of the U. S. Catholic community, engaging the seminary community in serving our sisters and brothers overseas.

Initially, each seminary is asked to identify four animators – two faculty members (preferably representing different dimensions of the PPF) and two seminarians (preferably in 2nd or 3rd year of theology). As the CRS/seminary partnership continues each year, this animator group, while continuing in their role as animators, invite additional faculty members and seminarians into their animator group, widening the circle of engagement and responsibility within the seminary community.

Seminary animators are encouraged to read the following:

✓ Appendix A: Expectations for Full Participation
✓ Appendix B: Seminary Engagement – Activities/Events within the 4 Dimensions of Formation
Appendix A

EXPECTATIONS FOR FULL PARTICIPATION

CRS is committed to strengthening the capacity of seminaries to equip future priests to proclaim, animate, and activate Catholic social teaching within their seminaries, parishes and communities. CRS cannot fulfill its commitment without the collaboration and commitment of various seminary institutions, personnel and students.Outlined below is the commitment we are seeking.

Year 1

Focus: Raising awareness regarding the importance of Catholic social teaching and familiarity with Catholic Relief Services (CRS).
